You may be right about "Rudy's" age, but I under-Far be it from us to throw cold water on idol-worshiping, but one of the contributors to the Letter Box has sent in a clipping to the effect that Rodolph Valentino is much interested in a certain Russian danseuse, Natacha Rambova, by name. We had heard it before, but being naturally suspicious took little stock in it. Even now, we keep a quantity of salt handy in regard to the statement, and only print it because a fan went to the trouble of clipping it out and sending it in.

The Famous-Lasky people, you know, have given up their London studies and are recalling the units working there. Some of the pictures made by those companies include "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush." "Love's Boomerang." "Spanish Jade." "Three Live Ghosts" and "The Man from Home."

3. Harry Felden—Your letter was interesting and filled with real common sense, but where on earth did you get that idea of my opinion of Valentino?

Why, on the contrary, I agree with werything you say about him, and have right along, though I have expressed the bope that he might develop. My atticude, in fact, was what caused the long-lrawn-out argument in this column. So instead of being persona non grata with me, you've made a real hit. Also, Agnes Ayres is one of my favorites, though I repeat my statement that in her recent pictures her beauty has counted more than her acting. In regard to your questions, Robert Warwick is playing on the stage in "Drift-vick is playing on the stage in "Drift-vick is yellow the producer is making throughout the country. I haven't heard of Lew Cody recently, but he is to me that this is the record, although making pictures, I believe, for an independent concern. He last appeared sum through the sale of her brain chiller with Norma Talmadge in "The Sign on the Docs." Sign on the Door."

Judy—Yes, Lewell Sherman played the villain in "Way Down East." No. that was Leen Barry, not George Arthus, in "The Lure of Jade." Your eagle eye noted the fact that people went in swimming with their clothes on in "Conflict" and cried off instantaneously when they came out. That's a good one something pay in the year of the year of the year of the something pay in the year of the year of the something pay in the year of the year o "Conflict" and cried off instantaneously when they came out. That's a good one. Bd Connelly played the role of John Remaile in that picture. Yes. I like Tommy Meighau. Some of Charles Pay's latest pictures are "R. S. V. P.," "Gas. Oil and Water," "The Barnstormer," "Scrap Iron" and "Nineteen and Phyllis." Eagene O'Brien is still acting. He's with Selz. nick. I think I'll keep you guessing on my real opinion of Valentino. We'll print pictures of Ray and Meighan, but not of the other gentleman you men. not of the other gentleman you men-tion. If you read the papers during a recent notorious case you'll understand why.

rour bewilderment. That letter we printed was, as we said, reprinted from a Chicago paper. It was, as far as we knew, authentic, but previously, like you, we had understood that Valentine and his wife were separated, after extensive legal bickering. As soon as I can obtain the really authentic facts of the case I'll let you know. In the meantime con't take these wild rumors tee seriously. That Philadelphia yarn is bokum, I feel very sare.

Thomas Ince, Allan Dwan, Frank Rossmore Adams and Sonya Levien have all been made members within the last week. By the way, you knew, of course, that Mr. Dwan is going to direct Douglas Fairbanks in his new picture, taken from "Robin Hood."

I visited the Ince studio today, It looked rather cold and deserted, but over on the stage did find Maurice Tourneur working on "Lorna Doone" to the tune of two roaring studio heaters. Madge Bellamy and John Bowers were doing a scene in a sort of woodland dell. They both wore the romanticlooking costumes of the period, Fortunately for the actors, said costumes were—in Miss Bellamy's case—woolen, and—in Mr. Bowers—leather.

Miss Bellamy is a tiny thing with immense eyes, She is possessed of a sweet manner, and it is prophesied by many that she will some day be one of our greatest actresses. P'raps—p'raps.

High on the mountain sides

Coffee needs the rays of the tropic sun, and it grows best on the mountain sides, at an elevation of 1500 to 4500 feet above sea level. Soil conditions in the higher altitudes give to the coffee tree the needed vigor to produce the best results, and the light, dry air of the mountain slopes insures the berries maturing under the most favorable conditions.

Coffee trees are set out in rows at intervals of 8 to 10 feet. They do not produce until the third or fourth year. At six years, they become full bearing, but the average yield of a tree is only two to three pounds a year.
